New York, NY – Ballet Hispánico, the nation's largest Latinx dance organization recognized as one of America's Cultural Treasures, is doubling down on its long-standing commitment and promise of support to Latinx dancers and the BIPOC communities it serves with the launch of two new innovative initiatives, Latinx Dance Institute and Pa'lante* Scholars.

"From its inception, 50 years ago, Ballet Hispánico's vision was centered in access and service to a field and a community. As I look to the future, I envision a stronger, deeper commitment to our Company dance artists, achieved by encouraging personal development and providing new tools to expand their profession and careers," Eduardo Vilaro, Artistic Director and CEO, Ballet Hispánico. "Now is the time for our field to develop the leadership necessary to scaffold the future with diversity, integrity, and equity. We now must manifest security and trajectory for our dancers who give so much to this organization, industry, and community."

The brainchild of Vilaro, Latinx Dance Institute was created as a result of an urgent need to nurture, develop and promote the next generation of dance leaders, providing them with the necessary skills and visibility to expand their careers. Catalytic funding and partnership for The Latinx Dance Institute is provided by The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation, who shares Ballet Hispánico's deep commitment to elevating the voices of Latinx leadership. Additional funding is made possible by MacKenzie Scott's recent transformative gift. Major funding for Instituto Coreográfico is provided by the Rockefeller Brothers Fund and the Mertz Gilmore Foundation. This project is supported in part by an award from the National Endowment for the Arts.

Vilaro has named Johan Rivera, Associate Artistic Director and Latinx Dance Institute Director, effective immediately. Rivera, an integral member of the Ballet Hispánico staff and former Company dancer, will be responsible for helping to launch Ballet Hispánico's thought leadership programming by curating the Company's Instituto Coreográfico, the Latinx Leaders Summit, and the organization's engaging Diálogos series. In his role as Associate Artistic Director, Rivera will be joining the artistic team and assisting Vilaro with the curational aspects of the Company.

Under Vilaro's leadership and Rivera's stewardship, Ballet Hispánico is building a complementary system that holistically serves Latinx artists, and other artists of color, providing them with a new network filled with opportunities from student to choreographer, and from administrator to leader.

Among the many significant components that comprise the Latinx Dance Institute, a few highlights include:

- Instituto Coreográfico— Instituto Coreográfico invites audience members, dance leaders, presenters, and choreographers to respond, reflect, and enter into dialogue about dance and culture with an emerging choreographer through showings and panel discussions.
- Latinx Leaders Summit — Latinx Dance Institute will host Latinx Leaders Summit, a two-day event of forums, discussions, workshops, and networking. The summit is an extension of the first Latinx Leaders Convening, which Ballet Hispánico hosted in the fall of 2019. Latinx dance leaders will confer, discuss, and find ways of working to create more visibility of everyone's cultural contributions and offer new ways of assuring diversity in the dance field.
- Diálogos—The Institute will also help inform Ballet Hispánico's insightful conversation series, Diálogos, and bring deeper awareness of the art form to Latinx communities and New York City. The Diálogos are free public panel discussions exploring the interconnectedness of arts, social justice, and Latinx culture. The Latinx Dance Institute will give Ballet Hispánico the opportunity to focus its public discussions on Latinx experience and unearth deeper conversations of the artistic process in order to better serve the community.

In keeping with Ballet Hispánico's steadfast commitment to building the future artists and leaders of the dance community, the organization also announced the launch of Pa'lante Scholars, Professional Studies Program. The comprehensive initiative will provide 20 dancers between the ages of 18-25 years old, tuition-free scholarships. The program will run from September 6, 2021-May 22, 2022.

The Pa'lante Scholars initiative is designed to bridge the gap between the pre-professional and professional stages of a dancer's career. Ballet Hispánico is answering the need for more career centered programs that build artistry and leadership for our communities, without the financial burden often tied to professional development.

The program immerses selected dancers in a professional intensive focusing on artistry development through a full-day, comprehensive curriculum that includes, but is not limited to, daily ballet and contemporary technique classes, master classes in Spanish Dance, Screen, Latin Rhythms, floor work, modern dance, acting, and voice along with professional development seminars on such topics as nutrition, personal advocacy, financial planning and literacy, and other life/work skills coaching. While focusing on the professionalism needed to succeed in the dance world, dancers will have the opportunity to learn and perform select pieces from Ballet Hispánico's renowned Company repertory as well as original works created by accomplished choreographers in the field. Each dancer will have the opportunity to have individualized coaching and mentorship in rehearsals from the director of the program, as well as other members of the Ballet Hispánico artistic team including Vilaro.

Ballet Hispánico is now accepting video audition applications. The deadline to submit an audition video is Sunday, August 15, 2021.
